The great Italian port of Naples, wrecked by Allied aerial bombardment and artillery fire as well as by German sacking, officially fell to the Allies as Fifth Army columns, with air support, pushed through the city to chase the fleeing Germans twenty miles further north on the road to Rome.

Japanese Positions on Huon Peninsula Virtually Hopeless

Veteran Australian 9th Division Takes Finschhafen Saturday

(By The Associated Press)
Japanese troops, ousted from Finschhafen, are compressed into virtually hopeless positions on Huon Peninsula in New Guinea, and the whole northeastern shore to Madang is menaced by the allies.

Huon peninsula juts out toward strategic New Britain.

The veteran Australian ninth division seized Finschhafen Saturday, and Australians are pressing against the Japanese by land.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur declared that allied advances by ground and air striking up from Lae and over the mountains to the Rarmu river valley had "outflanked and contained all enemy centers between Finschhafen and Madang, (200 miles northwest of Finschhafen) and rendered practically useless numerous positions and installations along the coast."

The speed of these thrusts "caught the enemy completely by surprise and has resulted not only in the dislocation of his grip on British New Guinea, but has caused him large losses with no compensating damage inflicted on our own forces," he declared.

The Japanese were attacking meanwhile in southeastern China, with the apparent purpose of blunting possible Chinese drives upon their positions in the Shanghai-Nanking-Hangchow triangle. Chungking announced the loss of several towns, and casualties on both sides. The Japanese are bringing up reinforcements and the fighting is growing fiercer.

Japanese reports, unconfirmed by allied sources, broadcast by Tokyo and Berlin said that six allied submarines had been sunk in September "near Japan proper and in other operational areas" and that a Japanese raid on a convoy off Vella Lavella in the Solomons Friday had destroyed five allied transports, a cruiser, and 10 planes.

Knox Sees Battle for Naples From Warship

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 4—(AP)—Allied operations in Italy represent a new high in cooperation between land, sea and air forces. U. S. Navy Secretary Frank Knox declared yesterday, but he warned against over-optimism as a result of the successes thus far achieved.

"We are still only attacking outposts and have not yet assaulted the Fortress of Europe," Knox said in an address to war correspondents after watching part of the battle of Naples from a destroyer.

Every State in Union Exceeds Bonds Quota

Washington, Oct. 4—(AP)—Treasury Secretary Morgenthau said today every state in the union apparently oversubscribed its quota in the $15,000,000,000 third war loan just closed.

Individual purchases, primary goal of the drive, exceeded the ceiling set for them, he said. The far loan total today stood close to $17,000,000,000.

Morgenthau, appearing before the house ways and means committee to outline the administration's new tax program, said figures on the drive will be out about October 16.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

The Balkans are boiling with reports that Germany is seeking a separate peace with Russia, and that Moscow is considering the idea.

These and other recent stories along a similar line undoubtedly were inspired by Berlin. They perhaps were put out partly as feelers, but certainly with the hope of creating distrust among the allies.

Along with this, Hitler has ordered his commanders to hold a "blood wall" across northern Italy and to "defend" Fortress Europe to the last drop of blood. A German commentator hands out the word that this is a "guaranty that the Nazi armies in Fortress Europe will be able to hold their positions many years, if necessary, until the allies are convinced the war is futile."

The intent of this is obvious—to implant in the minds of the allies the thought that, after all, it might be better to make peace now than to let the war drag on interminably. There's no doubt the fuhrer knows he's beaten and wants to get out of the war on the best terms possible, though Berlin noisily continues to deny it has any idea of surrender.

Well, would Russia make a separate peace with Germany? All the indications thus far have been that she has no intention whatsoever of doing so. However, one doesn't need a telescope to see that, with one of the greatest crises of the war now being staged along the Dnieper, military developments might alter Russia's mind.

Moscow's call for the western allies to open a second front in France has been repeated almost daily as the German retreat has continued. The Russians have kept insisting that the appointed hour for that front was at hand while Hitler was on the defensive. They have said they needed this aid because of the

Nebraska Governor Will Get Help in Buying All Those Hogs He Had Wagered

Omaha, Oct. 4—(AP)—Prize Nebraska hogs will go to the victorious state executives who accepted Governor Dwight Griswold's wager that his state would beat all others in war bond purchases—on a proportionate basis—in the Third War Loan drive.

The governor didn't know today just how many hogs he would have to buy, but he did know where he was going to get them. He will attend the auction sale of prize 4-H club hogs at the Ak-Sar-Ben stock show in Omaha next Friday.

Some of his friends indicated they would be on hand to ease

Industrialists Will Meet Here Tomorrow to Plan Scrap Drive

Exclusive War Department Films Will Be Shown at Session

The Dixon Industrial Center Committee of the War Production Board will launch the reopening of a drive for scrap metal at a meeting to be held Tuesday evening at 7:45 at the Loveland Community House.

Representatives from several industrial plants in Mt. Morris, Polo, Amboy and Dixon have received special invitations from Chairman Walter C. Knack of the industrial salvage committee, to attend this interesting meeting.

"The Life and Death of the Hornet" and Major General "Jimmy" Doolittle's bomber attack on Tokyo will be exclusively shown in film at this meeting. The film portrays in vivid film language the story of the career of the Hornet from its launching to its fighting finish. It is exclusively in control of the War Department, has never been publicly shown, and will not be available for public movie theater showings. It carries many intimate and unusual scenes of special interest to all phases of production.

The purpose of the showing of this film Tuesday evening is to acquaint industry in this locality on the production situation and

Definition of Non-Fathers Is Given

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 4—(AP)—Draft registrants who may be fathers, but are non-fathers to the draft board, were defined today by state selective service headquarters, which declined a gain to predict when pre-war fathers may be called from Illinois. "There are so many factors involved that it is impossible at present to make an intelligent or close prediction," state director Paul G. Armstrong said.

In a statement he said draft boards consider as "non-fathers" the following:
Single man without dependents; married man with wife only; man with child acquired prior to Dec. 8, 1941, but with whom he had not regularly maintained a bona fide family relationship in his home; man with child acquired on or before Dec. 8, 1941, provided such man is engaged in a nonferable activity or has left an agricultural occupation without local board consent.

The burden on the governor's pocketbook. Gratefully Griswold said "that's the best news I've heard in a long time. I just hope plenty of my friends turn out, because buying hogs can run into a lot of money in a hurry."

'Do Not Be Bitter' Hero's Last Appeal to Parents and Wife

Naval Lieutenant Author of Unusual Letter be for He Met Death

Los Angeles, Oct. 4—(AP)—"My dearest parents," began the letter of Navy Lt. (JG) Wallace M. Bonaparte, young Los Angeles lawyer.

"I had hoped never to have to write this, for over a long period, even after being sent overseas, I had been safe and secure, but lately I have been in some tight spots. I do not expect to die in this war—no one does—but I am playing on my luck more and more. Only in the event it does not hold out will you get this letter."

"It would not be written now, for I have no premonition of death, were it not that I know full well the place that I and my personal welfare play in your lives and in your hearts. This cannot ease your grief, but it may serve to convey my frame of mind at the prospects of losing my life, and my frame of mind may be of some importance to you."

"At first when I knew I was in danger I thought a lot about it. I worried continually, frantically, at the thought of all the happiness I would miss in my married life that started out so wonderfully, and of how you, who have built your lives around my health and happiness and success, would feel."

"Inured to Death"
"After a while I ceased to think of dying. Now I never do—except in moments like this, when I do so for a definite purpose. I am inured to death. If it comes I am mentally and morally prepared. My primary thoughts out here are of life; of winning the war and returning someday to you and to my dear wife."

"I am deeply conscious of what I am fighting for and would not sit at home during this war if I could. What I fight for is not an abstraction to me. It is not any value ideal of freedom or democracy. I reduce it to the most elemental of emotions, that of man's instinctive, dominating, intense desire to protect those individuals whom he holds dearest. I don't claim that this is the reason for any other man's participation in the war. It is my own."

Asks No Bitterness
"So the fact I may die while I am protecting you does not grieve me in the least. If I do I shall be happy to have done what I have to preserve your lives and way of life, and all of the sacrifice and effort on your part to rear me as a good citizen, educated and successful, are not wasted."

"So although you will grieve, do not, please do not, be bitter. Know that I am smiling here as I write at sea—that I am content that I am doing what I want to do and

Extend Deadline for Applying for Job as State Grain Sampler

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 4—Robert L. Hunter, president of the state civil service commission announced today that the date for filing applications for grain sampler in the Illinois department of agriculture had been extended to Saturday, Oct. 9.

In accordance with the "career service" plan set up by the Commission, men who become grain samplers, will be given the opportunity to gain experience for the positions of grain sampler II, and grain inspector, each position involving greater responsibility and increased salary ranges.

An additional inducement to attract efficient employees to State Service is the pension plan set up by the 63rd general assembly. By this plan, the state will provide disability as well as retirement annuity benefits for all state employees.

Career service in the state government offers persons with little or no experience an opportunity to get experience in a specialized field and to work into top positions in that field. Grain samplers are taught the various technical duties involved in handling grain and may work up in that field. This is accomplished by the use of promotional examinations and service ratings.

Applications and further information concerning the position may be obtained from the Civil Service Commission, Room 505, Armory, Springfield, or from Illinois offices of the United States Employment Service. These applications must be mailed to the Civil Service Commission in Springfield, before midnight of the closing date, October 9.

Day and Night Air Raids on Germany Almost Continuous

London, Oct. 4—(AP)—American Flying Fortresses, supported by long-range Thunderbolts, swept into Germany today and attacked targets in Frankfurt, which is 91 miles southwest of Kassel where RAF heavy bombers struck last night, it was announced today.

The Air Ministry also said that British Mosquitos bombed Hannover and targets in the Rhineland last night. Other bombers laid mines in enemy waters.

A British communique described the Kassel attack as "very heavy." The RAF's night operations, including the Kassel raid, cost 24 bombers.

Frankfurt, with a population of more than half a million, is a big inland port on the Main river, a railway center, and the site of large oil refineries, chemical plants, and other war factories.

First Precision Attack
Today's daylight raid was the first precision attack of the war on Frankfurt, untouched by air assault since last December.

The Kassel raid was the fourth big blow in six months on that manufacturing center for Messerschmitt fighter planes and other war machines.

The twin blows followed the now-familiar allied strategy of splitting the German defenses, as the cities lie less than 100 miles apart, one east of the Ruhr and the other southeast.

Five hundred tons of bombs were dropped Saturday night on Munich, the Nazi party's birthplace and a main supply outlet from southern Germany into Italy.

The British smash at Munich highlighted the obvious allied intention to subject all of Germany to a two-directional air offensive—from Britain and eventually from Italy—for it followed by less than 48 hours the first American Flying Fortress raid on the same city from Northwest African bases.

Federal Grant Made Dixon Hospital for Student Nurses Fund

Notice of allotment of large federal grant was received late Friday by the Dixon public hospital.

Under the Bolton Act, Student nurses will receive a stipend of $15 a month for the first 9 months of their training, $20 a month for the next 21 months, and $30 a month for the last six months of service, and will be known as cadet nurses. The federal government will pay nurses for the first 30 months, the hospital is expected to pay the last six months.

The student will be furnished uniforms, books and tuition. In return for this assistance, nurses who enroll under the Bolton act program pledge themselves to remain in essential nursing service for the duration of the war. This does not mean they will be called on for military service.

The federal government has launched this program in an effort to increase the number of student nurses this year to 65,000, and in this way to overcome the shortage of nurses throughout the country.

Pumpkin Pie and Alert Boy Fails Jail Break

Vandalia, Ill., Oct. 4—(AP)—A 14-year-old youth was credited today with frustrating an attempted jail break by tossing a pumpkin pie.

Sheriff Charles "Chick" Brannon's son, Eddie, was the pie pitcher. The youth threw it in the face of C. H. Neel, 39, when Neel overpowered Fayette county Jailor D. E. Donaldson. Then Eddie whacked Neel over the head with the glass pie plate to complete the job.

Sheriff Brannon said Neel threw a cup of hot coffee in Donaldson's face to start the disorder as the jailer served doughnuts.

Wartime Tax Scheme is Given Congress by Treasury Today

Morgenthau Asks Ten and Half Billions in Next Fiscal Year

Washington, Oct. 4—(AP)—The administration recommended $10,500,000,000 in additional taxes to congress today and designated the individual income taxpayer to supply $6,500,000,000 of that big sum annually.

In a program designed to push yearly federal revenues nearly to $50,000,000,000, Secretary Morgenthau asked too for big increases in corporation, estate, gift and excise taxes.

The treasury head also left with congress a suggestion for broadening the social security that might mean $5,300,000,000 more in employer and employee taxes—but he emphasized that if such payroll taxes are increased, his recommended income tax rates should be lowered.

For the individual, Morgenthau's $10,500,000,000 tax program meant:

1. Repeal of the 5 percent Victory tax, which would eliminate about 9,000,000 persons from income tax payments; repeal the 10 percent earned income credit.

2. Reduce exemptions for married persons and heads of families from $1,200 to $1,100; lower the dependents' credit from $350 to $300; leave the single person exemption at $500.

3. Leave the normal income tax rate at 6 percent but increase surtaxes throughout the scale, beginning with a jump from 13 to 21 percent on the first taxable dollar and reached 90 percent on amounts exceeding $100,000, as compared with the 79 percent now applicable at that level.

Plans Post War Credit
4. Extend application of the withholding tax, now at 20 percent of the taxable portion of wages and salaries, on a graduated scale so as to collect substantially

Illinois Treasury Gets Ten Millions

Chicago, Oct. 4—(AP)—Illinois' treasury will take in more financial bulk when $10,428,463.24 in unspent relief appropriations revert to the general revenue fund.

The funds were accumulated during a two year period ended last June 30. They represent a balance of $10,248,583.18 in unused relief appropriations and $179,880 in unspent appropriations for its administration by the Illinois Public Aid Commission.

Commission Director Raymond M. Hilliard, in announcing the action yesterday said, "these savings resulted from continuous reductions in relief rolls through private employment and were accompanied by increased allowances to persons who were assisted."

"One of the first official acts of the commission (which was formed July 1, 1941) was to make the self support of relief recipients a major item of its business."

He reported the number on state relief rolls was reduced from 288,533 in July, 1941, to 90,756 in June, 1943. It dropped to 80,084 last August.

The actual amount of assistance per person, he added, increased from $9.91 in July, 1941 to $15.99 in June, 1943.

GROP Museum in Compton Tomorrow; in Ashton from 3 to 9:30 Wednesday

The mobile museum of the Green River Ordnance plant—containing the most interesting and educational display of completed ammunition, parts, and related items used in shell-loading operations ever to be assembled for showing in this part of the state—will appear in Ashton from 3 to 9:30 p. m. Wednesday afternoon and evening. The unit was scheduled to appear in Franklin Grove from 2 to 5 p. m. today, and is to be stationed in front of the Chaon store in Compton from 2 to 5 p. m. tomorrow.

The huge 50-foot unit has been assembled by the Stewart-Warner corporation, operators of GROP, and has been making a tour of this section in an effort to secure additional employees needed to operate that government-owned, shell-loading plant.

The "Rocket"—one of the most potent projectiles of World War II and, until recently, veiled in military secrecy—is now on view in

Hitler Threatened With Loss of Last Hold in Caucasus

London, Oct. 4—(AP)—German troops were threatened with the loss of their last tenuous foothold in the Caucasus today as the Red army drove them back from Staro-Tamanskaya on the Taman peninsula, while on the upper Dnieper river the nazis fought furiously to block a Russian flanking movement aimed at Mogilev.

Announcement of the fall of Staro-Tamanskaya was made by the Berlin radio, and the full extent of the German collapse in the Caucasus was indicated in a Russian communique last night which told of the sinking of a number of troop-laden ships which apparently were attempting to evacuate the remnants of the shattered German army across the narrow Kerch Strait to the Crimea.

Reds Cross Pronya

On the central front, Moscow said, more than 2,000 nazis were killed as the Russians stormed across the Pronya river, 28 miles east of Mogilev, to occupy 70 villages in a maneuver which threatened to turn the German flank in that sector.

South of Mogilev the Russian columns advancing on Gomel found their assaults slowed up by the Germans, who launched numerous counter attacks all of which the Russian communique said were repulsed.

The Russians were apparently stalled at the Dnieper river barrier in the vicinity of Kiev and Dnepropetrovsk to the south, and the soviet communique told only

Helping Out

Benton Harbor, Mich., Oct. 4—(AP)—Some of Adolf Hitler's soldiers began helping out here today in the job of assuring the American housewife of her jams and jellies.

Prisoners of war, several hundred troops once marched under the swastika were brought to this fruit center quietly by special train over the week-end from the Camp Grant (Ill.) prison camp.

Their work in the grape processing plants of this area, was slated to begin almost immediately. Under the guard of American soldiers, the prisoners will be taken in buses in various processing plants.

His march was advanced greatly by the leapfrog tactics of amphibious landing forces which seized Termoli by surprise, beat off German counterattacks, took an undisclosed number of prisoners well behind the enemy's rear and then made a junction with the main body of the Eighth Army which continued to pound up the coast.

Termoli, 50 miles north of Foggia, the airbase city, is a small seaport with 5,000 or 6,000 inhabitants.

Immediately north of Naples, Fifth Army patrols with strong British armor support, stabbed relentlessly at the retreating Germans and found enemy resistance stiffening, apparently because the Germans were intent upon slowing down Clark's advance long enough to withdraw heavy equipment and supplies across the Volturno.

The Fifth Army's march also was impeded greatly by German demolition parties which were blowing up every bridge, road junction and culvert.

Spectacular Gains
While Montgomery's amphibious undertaking, a repetition of the tactics that permitted rapid advances along both Sicilian coasts, made spectacular gains, other Eighth Army forces pushed to the northwestern edge of the Fogia

French Take Bastia as Germans Land in Some Force on Coo

British Eighth Army on Italian Mainland Occupies Termoli

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 4—(AP)—The final collapse of German resistance in Corsica was marked today by the entry of French forces into Bastia.

Moroccan Goums of the French forces were the first to enter the city at the northeastern tip of the Mediterranean island which now becomes a threat to the German forces on the Italian mainland above Rome.

Remnants of German forces were still scattered on beaches at isolated points both north and south of Bastia. But these were being pressed by French troops and American Rangers.

NAZIS LAND ON COO

Cairo, Oct. 4—(AP)—The Germans landed in strength on the island of Coo in the Italian Dodecanese and secured several important points in fighting with the British garrisons, the Middle East command announced today. "The fighting continues," said the communique.

The enemy's boats off Coo were attacked from the air all day yesterday, however, and many hits were scored, with Beaufighters, Baltimores and Hudsons all joining in the fierce assault.

Four-engine Liberators and Halifax bombers of the RAF also entered the fray by attacking airfields at Calato on Rhodes island Saturday night in an effort to upset the enemy's plans for air operations over Coo. Similar bombings were carried out last night against Heraklion airfield in Crete, another air-support base for the enemy's operations.

Two German dive-bombers were shot down over Coo, while the British lost six planes.

The German offensive was the first serious countermove against allied infiltration among the island stepping stones of the Aegean.

FROM ITALIAN FRONTS

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 4—(AP)—The British Eighth Army, with the support of allied naval forces which penetrated the Adriatic, have landed and clinched positions at Termoli, on the Adriatic coast almost midway between the Italian heel and the mouth of the Po in northern Italy, official front-line dispatches announced today.

Simultaneously, United States troops of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army, have surged forward from Benevento in their march on Rome from Naples, and have captured an important crossing of the Calore river, thereby threatening to turn the flank of any water defense line which the Germans may attempt to hold along the Volturno river.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's advance up the Adriatic coast—along the historic path of conquerors toward the Emilia Way, which leads to the Po valley—likewise threatened to turn the defenses of German Marshals Rommel and Kesselring which may be centered about Rome and the Apennines.

Leapfrog Tactics

Seattle, Oct. 4—(AP)—Every plane the allies could get off Mediterranean soil was thrown into the very nearly wasn't enough, says Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the U. S. Army Air Forces.
"The task would have been easier with more planes; it could not have been done with less," he said last night. He spoke at the opening of a war games demonstration in connection with a drive to recruit 2,000 new workers for the Boeing Aircraft Company, whose Flying Fortresses he termed "the outstanding heavy bomber of the war x x x praised to the skies by the allies and damned to hell by our enemies".

WINE WISDOM
Dry wines are those which contain little or no sugar, and fortified wines are those in which the proportion of alcohol and sugar is higher.

RATIONED LOBSTERS
Lobsters once were used as fertilizer in Gaspe, Quebec, Canada, but now are so scarce that fishermen are permitted to catch them only during June and July.

West Point Appointments
There are 82 appointments at large to the United States Military Academy at West Point; two are appointed upon recommendation of the vice president.

Gets Letter From Husband—

Mrs. Robert Vest today received a letter from her husband, Corp. Robert Vest, dated Sept. 11. The letter stated that he was in excellent health and to date Mrs. Vest has received no official word which would substantiate tragic rumors which have been current over the week end.

Licensed Here To Marry—

Marriage licenses were issued Saturday by County Clerk Sterling Schrock to Howard Louis Hageman and Miss Rita Ann Schultz, both of Sublette, Charles F. Fletcher of Morrison and Miss Vera E. Stewart of Fenton, Ralph W. Fulton and Miss Gwendolyn J. Schaller, both of Ashton.

Buy In Every Township—

Milton Reichard of the Columbia Hog & Cattle Powder Co., of Sterling, established quite a record in the purchase of bonds in the Third War Loan drive in Lee county which terminated last week. He purchased a bond in each of the townships of Lee county during last week, County Chairman Robert L. Bracken announced today.

Jury In Circuit Court—

A jury was selected in the Lee county Circuit court today in the trial of Harold Mater of this city on a charge of assault and battery upon Girard Brook at the Veteran's club east of Dixon on the River road several weeks ago. Mater pleaded not guilty to the charge in justice court and through his attorney, Elwin Wadsworth, appealed the hearing to the Circuit court, Judge George C. Dixon, who is presiding at the September term, excused the balance of the petit jury for the term.

$17,269 Paid In County—

Lueder, auditor of public accounts at Springfield. A total of 72 warrants were issued to 177 dependent children in Lee county amounting to $2,402 during September. In Ogle county old age pensions amounting to $16,670 which was paid to 623 clients and $1,842 was paid in 66 warrants to 133 dependent children during the month of September.

Seek Habeas Corpus Writ—

Helen Slambanes, patient at the Dixon state hospital, through her counsel, Attorney A. H. Hanneken today filed an action for habeas corpus to secure her release from the institution. The action is brought against the state hospital and Dr. Warren G. Murray, managing officer. In the complaint, the patient states that she was sent to the institution from the juvenile branch of the Cook county circuit court on April 21, 1943 and contends that she is being illegally detained and deprived of her rights by not having been committed.

Hurt In 'Cycle Accident—

Nancy Long, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Long, 1012 Seventh street, sustained painful injuries in a bicycle accident Sunday morning about 9:30 o'clock on Seventh street between Highland and Monroe avenues. She with two other companions, Ramona Ostrander, 523 Nachusa avenue, and Helen McKinney, 614 Nachusa avenue, were riding on one bicycle when it skidded. Nancy sustained an injury to her hip and shoulder and was taken to the Katherine Shaw Betha hospital by Officer Frank Tyne, who investigated the accident. The other two girls suffered bruises and cuts and were taken to their homes.

strain they themselves were under. Continued inability to open that front might result in the soviet taking independent action as regards Germany.

This and other military and political situations continue to emphasize the urgency of the forthcoming conference among representatives of the allied big three—Britain, Russia and the United States. There are vital differences of viewpoint to be reconciled if the victory which the United Nations assuredly are winning on the battle-fields isn't to be nullified by clashes among themselves.

The way things look now, all three powers are anxious for a friendly adjustment of the problems which have been troubling them. In this connection the week-end produced an event which Turkey interprets as a friendly gesture toward the western allies.

I refer to the manifesto issued by the "Patriotic Front of Bulgaria," calling on the Bulgarian people and army to break with the Germans and to collaborate with other Balkan nations and America, Britain and Russia on the basis of the Atlantic Charter. Istanbul believes this manifesto was inspired by Russia, and this being so it is a remarkable document because the soviet regards the Balkans as its sphere of influence and heretofore has appeared to frown on any Anglo-American intrusion such as invasion. The gesture seems to mean that Moscow does not intend to exclude Britain and the United States from Balkan affairs.

Thus the three-power conference bids fair to meet in a favorable atmosphere. Once such difficult issue as that of the "second front" and the Balkans can be ironed out, we may be able to get an answer whether Russia will grant the allies air bases in Siberia for operations against Japan.

plain and occupied the town of Motta, 28 miles northwest of Foggia. The communique also announced the occupation of Montemiletto, 11 miles southeast of Benevento, on the flank of the American column which reached and crossed the Calore.

On the west coast, allied air forces concentrated on enemy front formations north of Naples and knocked out a vital bridge at Capua, over which withdrawing columns of enemy troops had been moving across the Volturno river.

One allied officer said the German forces were retreating in a succession of quick hops, with rearward troops offering brisk delaying resistance and then fleeing rapidly to escape encirclement.

3 Allied Planes Lost

(A dispatch from Bern said the Geneva newspaper La Suisse had estimated German strength in Italy at 30 divisions, at least twice the number of troops landed by the allies. The newspaper asserted 20 of the German divisions, commanded by Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, were held in reserve in northern Italy).

Bombers raided the freight yards at Civitavecchia, 30 miles northwest of Rome, last night, a communiqué said.
Long-range fighter patrols off the Corsican coast destroyed one enemy fighter and allied aircraft shot down four more enemy planes at Isernia which attempted to prevent bombing.

Over the rest of the battlefield, however, allied airmen were unopposed.

Three allied planes were lost, the communiqué said.

Allied forces also were meeting with success in Corsica, which now has been cleared of nazis except for a 30-mile-long strip along the east coast.

BURNS FATAL TO BABY

Mt. Vernon, Ill., Oct. 4—(AP)—Maudie May Dobbs, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Dobbs, died yesterday of burns suffered when she fell into a bucket of hot water.

DIES AT 107

St. Louis, Oct. 4—(AP)—Herman Levy, whose family said he was 107 years old, died yesterday of arterio-sclerosis. He had 16 children, five of whom survive.

PERSONALS

Herman Rasch is in North Dakota attending to his business interest there.

Captain Cal Tyler was in Dixon for the weekend.

Miss Dolores Moran who has been very ill at the Katherine Shaw Betha hospital, is showing some improvement.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schade and son Paul, were Dixon visitors Saturday.

Sgt. Warren Badger arrived in Dixon last evening from San Francisco, Cal., to spend a several days furlough.

Mrs. Phil O'Connell of East First street has been confined to her bed for a week as a result of a fall on Galena avenue in the business district. A window washer doing a somewhat sloppy job by the excessive quantity of water going to the walk caused Mrs. O'Connell to fall. More care should be taken and thought given to the welfare of the public.

Pvt. Floyd "Bus" Egler who has been in training at the heavy coast artillery base at Camp McQuaide, Cal., arrived home last evening for a week's furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Egler. He was one of three candidates selected from his battery to attend observers' school at Fort Ord, Cal., where he will report next week.

Mrs. Mary Louise Moran and Miss Lorraine Glannoni returned to Dixon Sunday from San Diego, Cal., where the former has been with her husband who has been attending the U. S. Marine officer training school at the Marine base.

Mrs. Helen Schickley is in Chicago today.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bonaparte, were notified that Lt. Bonaparte was killed in action in the South Pacific. The letter, entrusted to an uncle, then was delivered to them.

"The letter gave us a better realization of the full stature of the boy, of his fortitude and foresight," said the father. "We were glad to permit it to be published, for we thought it might bring some solace to other parents whose boys are killed without being able to leave a message of comfort such as this."

Lt. Bonaparte, 26, joined the Navy in July, 1942, and met death while serving with amphibious force, his father added.

Laura Ingalls Given Her Freedom Friday

Washington, Oct. 4—(AP)—The justice department announced today the release of Laura Ingalls, woman aviator, from the Alderson, W. Va., women's reformatory where she completed a sentence for violation of the foreign registration act.

Miss Ingalls, accused of having failed to register as a German agent in the United States, was sentenced on February 20, 1942, to serve eight months to two years.

She was transferred from the District of Columbia jail to Alderson on July 14, 1943. Saying she was released last Friday, officials had no information as to her present whereabouts.

Officials said Miss Ingalls had been a model prisoner.

Wartime Tax Scheme

stantially the full liability in the higher salary and wage brackets. A post war credit to apply primarily at the lower levels of income. One suggestion is to refund $2,700,000,000; another to refund $3,510,000,000.

Morgenthau and Randolph Paul, treasury counsel outlined the tax program bearing Roosevelt's approval to the house ways and means committee.

One treasury representative told newspapermen that, if congress accepts the administration recommendation, the withholding tax might amount to around 7 per cent of gross income for a person with a $1,500 wage or salary, 12 percent for the man making $2,000, 28 percent for a $5,000 wage or salary.

Roughly, under Morgenthau's recommendation, the wage and salary earner could estimate the effect of the new withholding tax by estimating his total income tax at the revised rates and divide this by the number of paychecks or salary envelopes he receives yearly. The sum resulting would be approximately the amount to be deducted from each check or pay envelope.

Other Recommendations

Morgenthau's other recommendations included:

1. Corporation income—Increase surtax rates, the combined normal and surtax rate reaching a maximum of 50 percent as compared with the present maximum of 40 percent on corporations with income in excess of $50,000.

2. Estate and gift taxes—Increase estate tax rates; reduce specific exemptions from $60,000 to $40,000, and increase gift tax rates to three-quarters of the new and higher estate tax rates.

3. Excises—An increase all along the line, and new taxes on soft drinks and gum, estimated to yield $2,490,000,000.

Of the increased take from incomes, Morgenthau proposed that between $2,000,000,000 and $3,500,000,000 be made refundable after the war.

At the same time, however, the treasury head suggested broadening of the social security system to increase job insurance benefits and provide payments for temporary disability and hospitalization.

"A substantial increase in the social security payroll taxes," Morgenthau said, "would be of immediate service in diminishing the threat of inflation, x x x"

"If payroll taxes are increased, the income taxes should at that time be made substantially lower than I have suggested to avoid an excessive burden on the lower income groups."

The tax program given congress represents a $1,500,000,000 reduction from the previously-voiced goal of $12,000,000,000. There already have been signs at the Capitol, however, that congress was unlikely to vote more than 4 or 5 billion additional.

"At first glance," Morgenthau told the committee, "it may seem that a billion and a half less than our original figure is not a substantial reduction; but all the reduction is in the individual income tax and it amounts to a great deal in terms of a reduced burden on any given individual or family."

Aside from a general discussion of the tax program, Morgenthau left to Randolph Paul, treasury general counsel, the task of outlining specific means for achieving the goals. Paul was to be the second witness.

Urges Simplification

In the interest of simplification, Morgenthau called for repeal of the five per cent Victory tax and elimination of the 10 per cent credit now allowed individuals on earned income.

Repeal of the Victory tax, he told the committee, not only would be the "first and most important step toward tax simplification," but would "improve the equity of the income tax system in important respects."

Noting that the Victory tax now allowed a flat $624 exemption

regardless of family size, Morgenthau testified:

"While it does not seem desirable simply to exempt wholly from taxation all those now liable for Victory tax, but not with present income tax brackets, equity will be promoted by repealing the Victory tax and lowering present income tax exemptions. By lowering them to $1,100 for married persons, and $300 for dependents, we would retain with about the same tax burden those tax payers now liable only for Victory tax, who are best able to bear the burden of some income tax."

"At the same time we would relieve 9,000,000 hard-pressed families from tax on their incomes."

"Repeat would not, of course, leave these citizens untaxed. They would continue to pay heavy indirect taxes, and most of them under existing law will have their social security taxes doubled next year."

Must Take in Belts

Morgenthau said the additional taxes "will make it necessary for people to take in their belts—but the cold hard facts of fiscal necessity demand it. We know by now that our willingness to spend the necessary funds, no matter how large, has had and will continue to have a definite effect on the lives of our men in battle."

"These things—equipment, medical supplies, lend-lease, and all the rest—have helped to build the war cost to its present huge proportions, but I am sure you will agree, and I am sure the American people agree, that it is worth while."

Morgenthau said the tax program had been measured against four considerations:

1. "The ability of the plan to raise money, and its effect on the inflation program."

2. "The degree to which it might interfere with war production."

3. "The degree of hardship the plan placed upon people with fixed incomes and with fixed obligations, and upon people with inadequate incomes, and"

4. "Its practicability and cost from the standpoint of its administration."

42 Billion Excess Spending

Morgenthau said income payments to individuals in the current fiscal year were estimated at $152,000,000,000 with only about $50,000,000,000 worth of goods and services available. Of the remaining $63,000,000,000 he said personal taxes would take $21,000,000,000 at present rates, leaving about $42,000,000,000 of "excess spending money."

Chairman Walter Knack today received the following telegram from Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production board:

"We need your influence and direction in the fall-winter scrap drive for 1943 and continuing support of industrial center committees to move all available scrap. A minimum of 15,000,000 tons of iron and steel scrap are required for the last six months of 1943 to maintain the current production rate. # TODAY on the HOME FRONT

by JAMES MARLOW and GEORGE ZIELKE

Washington, Oct. 4—(AP)—Most women over 45 years of age are not in the labor market and do not play as aggressive a role in searching for jobs as do the younger women.

So says the census bureau, adding:

"Further intensified recruiting will be necessary to utilize the potential workers among these older women, x x x Their efficiency and accomplishment in a variety of jobs has frequently been attested."

The bureau points out, too, that home responsibilities for women are often lighter after 45.

These statements were made in a study of unemployment. And these are some of the things the bureau said:

Current information shows that only a small percentage of those—men and women—now unemployed are out of jobs very long and that half those listed as unemployed change jobs each month. This is different from a few years ago: Then unemployment meant pro-longed job-hunting and hardship.

About 67 per cent of the people unemployed in April, 1940, said they had been without a full time job more than three months.

But in July of this year only 7 per cent of all unemployed persons said they had been seeking more than three months. Thus in the space of a few years the character and meaning of unemployment have changed basically since long-term unemployment is rare now.

ning for ultimate victory hinges on this work and your generous cooperation will guarantee its success."

From Robert P. Patterson, under secretary of the War Production Board, Chairman Knack today received the following telegram:

"The invasion of Europe and the task ahead in the Pacific emphasize the fact that our need for production of arms continues unabated. The goal of 15,000,000 tons of iron and steel scrap for the second half of 1943 is an important part of our long range program for victory. The work of your committee is vital to the success of our planning for future aggressive military action. The maintenance of the peak of steel making capacity hinges on an adequate supply of scrap. Our goal must be met."

Wedding of Dixon Girl Is Solemnized Saturday

Marriage of Louise Miller and Albert Kennedy Is One of Season's Notable Events

Beautiful St. Luke's Episcopal church with its ivy-covered walls was the setting for the fashionable wedding of Miss Louise Cummins Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore J. Miller, 423 North Galena avenue, and Albert Nelson Kennedy, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Kennedy, 119 Dement avenue, which took place Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The Rev. Joseph C. Mason officiated at the single ring ceremony.

Tall palms decorated the church and vases of white chrysanthemums, cathedral candles, and candelabra holding tall white tapers decorated the altar.

Miss Naomi Wolf accompanied Miss Evelyn Worsley as she sang Ave Maria (Schubert) and O Perfect Love.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a long-sleeved white satin gown with fitted bodice and generously shirred skirt with a band of seed pearl embroidery around the neck and sleeves. Her fingertip veil drifted from a tiny cap with a small tiara which was made of delicate old lace which had been worn by her great-grandmother, Mrs. Theron Cummins. She carried a colonial-type bouquet of white roses and stephanotis which was tied with a bow of white malle.

Miss Barbara Miller, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mrs. Don McMahon and Miss Susanna Kreyling of Evansville, Ind., were bridesmaids. They were gowned alike in rose taffeta floor-length dresses made along fitted lines with three-quarter sleeves, and wore tiny callotes of the same material trimmed with matching coque feathers.

Sgt. John Kennedy, brother of the groom, was best man.

Little Miss Mary Sheldon, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl and wore a white dotted Swiss dress trimmed with rose-colored ribbons, and carried a tiny bouquet of sweetheart roses, blue delphinium and white chrysanthemums.

The bride's mother wore a black dress and black accessories and the bridegroom's mother chose black also. Mrs. C. A. Todd, grandmother of the bride, wore black and black accessories, and their corsages were or orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The house was decorated throughout with bowls of white chrysanthemums, northern pine and white tapers. The refreshment table had as its centerpiece a silver bowl filled with white chrysanthemums and silver candlesticks held white tapers. Mrs. Robert Warner and Mrs. Oliver Rogers poured during the afternoon.

When the bride and bridegroom left for a honeymoon in northern Michigan, she wore an aqua dress with brown accessories and a corsage of bronze chrysanthemums. Upon their return they will be at home at 207 Everett street.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, and is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and Mr. Kennedy attended the University of Illinois and Drake university. His fraternity is Phi Kappa Psi.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Rosalie O'Connor, Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Mrs. Robert G. Rote, Monroe, Wis.; Miss Nancy Price, Ironton, Mich.; Mrs. Robert Covey, Monroe, Wis.; Mrs. Andrew Grootendorst, Benton Harbor, Mich.; Mrs. Kenneth Burgess, Jr., and Mrs. James Edward Day, Hubbards Woods, Mr. and Mrs. John Bearton, Savannah, Ill.; Dr. and Mrs. Nelson Nelson, Morrison, Ill.; Carl Sheldon, Sterling; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Taylor, Springfield, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Henry, Streator; Ezra Miller, Freeport; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sprinkle, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Sheldon, Mimi and Johnny Sheldon, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flock, Sterling; Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy and Judy, and Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Chaney.

ST. AGNES GUILD

Members of St. Agnes Guild of St. Luke's Episcopal church will meet at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Hawley, 201 College avenue.

JOHNSON-SMITH NUPTIALS TAKE PLACE IN MINN.

Mrs. Troas Johnson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burdge of Dixon, rural route 4, and John C. Smith of Rock Falls, were united in marriage at 2 o'clock Tuesday, Sept. 28, at the English Lutheran church at Winona, Minn.

The double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. J. Francis Mussehl. Mrs. Mussehl, wife of the minister was at the organ, and played I Love You Truly. Attending the couple were Mr. and Mrs. Archie McDonald of Winona.

The bride was attired in a brown fall suit with accessories to match. Her corsage was of yellow rosebuds and gardenias.

Following the ceremony the bride and groom left for a brief honeymoon to points in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Mrs. Smith has been employed at the Sterling Garment company for the past three years, and the groom is employed at the International Harvester company at Rock Falls. They will be at home to their many friends at 502 East Third street in Rock Falls after October 15.

From Washington, he will go to Camp Roberts, Calif., to await further orders. Captain Spangler recently completed a three months' course at Fort Sill, Okla.

PICNIC PARTY

Last week Miss Rapp's third grade class, under the direction of their room mother, Mrs. Reider, hiked out to the home of Sally Prescott, daughter of Rep. and Mrs. Lyle Prescott, for a Weiner roast. Mrs. George Beier and Mrs. Gordon McDonald assisted at the party.

PICNIC SUPPER

Employees of the Hintz studio enjoyed a picnic supper Friday evening in honor of Miss Margaret Anderson, who is leaving soon for the University of Illinois. The party was held at the cottage of Harry Herbst.

War Work Can Be "Vacation" for Housewife

By RUTH MILLETT
A teacher who used to spend her three-month summer vacation and a good part of the money she saved during the year in traveling had a different idea this last summer.

She figured that in war time she didn't have any business using even a well-earned vacation doing nothing productive—and so she got herself a job.

She knew she really needed a change from the class-room if she were to come back to it refreshed and eager in the fall, and so she went to a large city and got herself a job in business, with the understanding, of course, that she could only work for three months.

She says it was one of the most enjoyable vacations she ever spent—in spite of the fact that she worked full time. She had the stimulation of living in a large city, meeting new people, getting a business woman's slant on things. And she got a kick out of the fact that she could handle an entirely different kind of job.

There are a great many housewives who have no children or whose children are of college age who would find that getting a war job or an essential civilian job would be just that kind of "vacation."

STIMULATING VENTURE
It would be hard work, of course. But the newness of it, the resulting friendships, the sense of power that comes from finding you can do something besides the job you've done most of your life would be as stimulating to a woman as a vacation.

And it probably wouldn't be much more exhausting than days filled with bridge games, club meetings, golf—and all the other things leisure class women do to kid themselves into thinking their lives are full.

A Thought for Today

There is a time wherein one man rutheth over another to his own hurt.—Ecclesiastes 8.9.

Authority intoxicates,

The fumes of it invade the brain,
And make mere men giddy, proud, and vain.

Union Dues from Soldiers

Leon Schacter, business manager of the Meat and Cannery Workers Union, scents a "smear against union labor" when the president of the New Jersey Farm Bureau discloses that soldiers, who were furloughed to work in canneries in an emergency, were required to pay union dues.

We think Mr. Schacter is unduly sensitive. Mr. Voorhes did say, when he described the incident, that he was "shocked beyond words." He is not the only one who feels that way about such a situation.

Mr. Schacter, on behalf of the union, does not deny that the soldiers, who went into the cannery because manpower was so short that huge quantities of tomatoes were ready to spoil, were required to pay union dues in order to help save vital food.

On the contrary, he gives details. The canneries were operating under a closed shop agreement, he says, and therefore nobody could work in them without paying union dues. The soldiers didn't have to work there. They could have gone on soldiering at Fort Dix and let the tomatoes rot.

What happened there has happened in at least several instances elsewhere. Emergencies have arisen in which too scarce foodstuffs would have spoiled for lack of help to harvest and handle and process them. The Army has given furloughs to those who volunteered to help. The men continued to receive their Army pay, and were permitted to receive also the wages for the work they did.

Under Army regulations soldiers in uniform are not permitted to compete with civilian labor. In time of war soldiers can not take off their uniforms, technically (though actually, in dirty work, they may do so occasionally, unofficially.)

But theoretically they are in uniform when they help out in such emergencies, and therefore can not "compete" with the non-existent civilian help whose absence caused the emergencies.

If these Fort Dix soldiers had not paid union dues they would have been competing with civilians. Since they paid the dues there was no competition.

New Jersey farmers are described as being "very incensed." Mr. Schacter can not understand why. Can you?

Demotion

Dissatisfaction has been expressed by two congressmen, of differing political affiliation, over the punishment meted out by an Army court-martial to Col. William T. Colman. There seems to be merit in their protests. Colonel Colman was demoted to a captaincy. As punishment, that is ample. But as protection for Army efficiency and Army morale, it does not seem quite adequate.

The charges against Colonel Colman were not directed at his technical qualification, but rather to his moral ethical and temperamental qualities. If he was found so deficient in these as to warrant demotion by three grades, there is a question whether he is fit to exercise the executive and disciplinary functions of a captaincy.

Errand for Q-74

By Malcolm Taylor

COPYRIGHT, 1943, MEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Capt. Raymond Imhof, Q-74, U. S. Army Intelligence, has been assigned to follow a low-level trail of Enzels, 4-40, leading to certain important information which Enzels has been unable to bring out of Germany. Imhof is to parachute into enemy territory from a plane flown by RAF Pilot-Officer Danforth. Over the Moselle the plane is hit by tracer bullets.

DOWN AND UNDER

CHAPTER VII

FOR ages, it seemed to Imhof, he dangled from the plane, struggling to keep his face toward the tail and hanging to the belt like grim death. His grip was almost slipping when he heard the command, "Let go!"

He came up sputtering and tingling all over as the plane moved on, level fore and aft and from wingtip to wingtip, almost skimming the water. Then, with the last bit of flying speed, Danforth shoved the stick full forward, forcing the tail down. It touched, with the sound of furrowed waters, dragged an instant and then the whole plane settled on the breast of the river.

Imhof struck out for the plane, where it floated upside down. He swam fast, scanning the river anxiously, but the pilot was nowhere in sight. When he reached the fuselage, however, Danforth bobbed up almost within arm's reach.

The plane, though filling fast through the open emergency panel and the Nazi's bullet holes, remained afloat for some time, and they clung to it, taking breath.

"I wish she'd sink," said Imhof. "She will soon. She's filling fast," said Danforth. "Look out!" he resumed a moment later. "She's going."

They kicked away and watched. Suddenly the nose of the plane, weighted by the mass of the engine, plunged to the bottom, sending the water in the fuselage audibly rushing forward from the Characters and situations are fictitious. Any resemblance to actual persons or happenings is coincidental.

The Great Whatsis

Having in mind that official instructions must be accurate even at the expense of clarity, probably it would be difficult for Treasury experts to express more comprehensibly the requirements of the income tax law they finagled congress into enacting.

So it is to the law, rather than to the administration, that we must look for relief from such verbiage as this, which is intended to tell taxpayers whether or not they have to file an estimate Sept. 15 of the tax they will owe Dec. 31:

"A declaration must be made by every citizen or resident of the United States if he comes within any of the following groups:

"(1) Single or married but not living with spouse at the date prescribed for the making of the declaration (whether or not head of a family) if he had for 1942, or reasonably expects to have for 1943—

"(a) gross income of more than $2700 from wages subject to withholding; or

"(b) gross income of $500 or more from all sources if more than $100 of such income is from sources other than wages subject to withholding.

"(2) Married and living with spouse at the date prescribed for the making of the declaration, if he had for 1942 or reasonably expects to have for 1943—

"(a) gross income from wages subject to withholding which, when added to his spouse's gross income from such wages, exceeds $3,500; or

"(b) gross income from sources other than wages subject to withholding which, when added to his spouse's gross income from such sources, exceeds $100, and also his gross income from all sources of both spouses amounts to $1,200 or more for either 1942 or 1943.

"(3) Individuals, regardless of marital status, who were required to file an income tax return for 1942 and whose wages subject to withholding for 1943 are reasonably expected to be less than such wages for 1942.

"The foregoing rules apply also to residents of Canada and Mexico whose wages are subject to withholding. Other non-resident aliens are not required to file declarations."

Well—do you have to file, or don't you? Why? Are you sure?

Senator Walter F. George is interested in suggestions from the public for clarification, simplification or other improvement in the internal revenue statutes, including the income tax law.

On the Job

The War Shipping Administration reports that absenteeism among merchant seamen and officers since March 15, 1943, has been less than 6½ per cent. That is, only about one out of 16 neglects to reshuffle after returning from a voyage.

Of 104,000 merchant seamen who have shipped from U. S. ports since that date, only 6,600 stayed ashore on their return, and the administration says that most of those gave up the sea for health reasons.

That, and the recruitment of some 20,000 experienced seamen who had left that occupation—many of them giving up good shore jobs to go back—are encouraging signs.

New Automobile Designs

The motor car industry now lets it be known that radical changes in automobiles will be introduced slowly after the war, so that each can be tested out and sold to the public.

This is good enough policy. But there is—let's be frank—another reason why innovations will be held back. Advances in automobile style and operation are made to sell cars. When the war ends, most machines will be obsolescent, there will be a lot of war bond money, and millions of new cars can be sold without much promotion.

The real advances will come after post-war replacement has slowed down so that an inducement is needed to promote sales.

Eastern architect says many new things will beautify the post-war home. We hope lower rent is one of them.

It's your own fault if you prefer to forget the past rather than use it for the future.

right bank of the river. When they could touch bottom they halted, listening and looking.

From down river the noise of the raid on Coblenz could be heard, muffled by distance. But near by there was not a sound to be heard nor a soul to be seen. The river bank, the whole country, appeared deserted.

"Come on," whispered Imhof.

THEY waded softly ashore and scrambled up the bank, gaining the road that runs beside the river. Here they halted again, dripping, while they looked in both directions, listening intently. A keen glance "round satisfied. Danforth that the coast was clear and he set about restoring circulation by rubbing himself vigorously and jumping softly about.

Imhof, meanwhile, checked their exact whereabouts. The sunken plane lay a furlong or more upstream. The current had carried Danforth and himself that far before they crossed and got ashore, more or less in the middle of a straight reach of the Moselle. Farther down, the river curved left out of sight. Round that bend lay Winnigen, on the left bank. Then the stream curved again to the right, passing the village of Lay, which was Imhof's first objective on the march to Coblenz.

For from Lay a path climbed into the hills flanking the Moselle and joined one of the small roads intersecting the plateau.

But as far as Lay they had to follow the high road. They would have to go carefully. There might be an air raid warden's post on the way and, with the raid, the warden would be on the job.

Danforth, now warmed up, stopped moving round.

"You taking this road to Coblenz?" he asked Imhof.

"Part of the way." "Well, I'll peel off here—in the opposite direction," the flyer said casually. "Good luck to you, Captain."

His hand went out, seeking Imhof's.

"Hold your horses," answered Imhof. "And put that hand back in your pocket."

Fair Enough

WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—The newspaper advisory committee of the Office of War Information has decided that the American public is not being informed adequately about the war. As to military matters, this committee obviously is better qualified to pass judgment than any layman. But any layman can see that adequate information concerning Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt's latest expedition has not been given.

The people have not been told who initiated this personal junket or who paid for it, and it is perfectly plain that the proceeds of Mrs. Roosevelt's newspaper column, a private enterprise, cannot pay the cost. She went in a great four-engined bomber, manned by two captains, three master sergeants and a staff sergeant, who took 23,000 feet of film, and was attended by George Durno, a Washington journalist, who is now a major of the Air Transport Command.

The salaries of these men would be a considerable item and the rental of the plane on any reasonable basis, plus the gasoline, would be an appalling obligation for even the richest columnist. The public is completely uninformed as to these costs and a vague statement that Mrs. Roosevelt would repay the American taxpayers by turning over the proceeds of her column to be divided between the Red Cross and the American Friends Service Committee belittles the intelligence of even the blindest personal devotee of the tourist who, this time, went so far as to refer to herself as the wife of the "ruler" of the United States.

The Red Cross and the American Friends Service Committee, whatever their worthiness, are not the United States treasury, which paid the cost of the journey with money derived from taxes paid by the sweat of everyone who toils and from bonds sold ostensibly to pay only legitimate and necessary costs of the war. There is no obligation reduced to figures, but there is an implied admission in the fuzzy promise to pay a couple of other fellows that the junket was not undertaken in the public interest.

No person who travels in the legitimate interest of the United States government is expected to pay his own costs.

It would appear that Mrs. Roosevelt became a field service worker of the Red Cross only for the purpose and duration of this trip and, in that case, it would be the Red Cross which conferred a favor on Mrs. Roosevelt, and at a sacrifice, incidentally, of a degree of public confidence in the organization under the management of the president's political house pet, Norman H. Davis.

Inasmuch as Mrs. Roosevelt is an active, subtle and indefatigable politician and in view of the delicate political situation surrounding Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the Red Cross, by the connivance at a pretext, has permitted itself to be drawn into politics. And that is bad not only for the Red Cross but for those who, in the end, look to the Red Cross for its services.

In a speech a few months ago, President Roosevelt, counseling the people at home to endure patiently the rationing of gasoline, illustrated his plea with the information that a Flying Fortress consumed 1110 gallons of gasoline in a bombardment mission of about 700 miles from North Africa, the equivalent of about 375 A ration units and "enough to drive your car five times across the continent." On this basis, Mrs. Roosevelt, in a flight of 26,000 miles, consumed 41,070 gallons, representing 130,875 A coupons, and 185 trips in your car across this continent. Moreover, in the fragmentary developments of the story, it has now been disclosed that the plane had been remodeled inside and fitted with seats and a bed.

All this, too, is aside from the fact that Mrs. Roosevelt traveled by automobile in Australia and New Zealand, using fuel imported, every single drop, over vast stretches of perilous ocean in tankers, and is always attended on her journeys by other cars hauling the official retinue and the sight-seers. That happened many times at home even when citizens of good conscience were willingly denying themselves all unnecessary mileage.

The interference with the work of the busy generals, admirals and other officers fighting a war undoubtedly was real and seriously detrimental, but, of course, it is not measurable, and no officer could admit that his work had been impeded without abandoning all hopes of promotion.

Mention of the 23,000 feet of film suggests that the fourth term campaign really warms up the American taxpayers and bond buyers will discover that they have paid for just that much political propaganda, fed to them as tonic for their morale. A civilian can't buy a 50-foot spool of film these days.

Pat Robinson, the INS correspondent at Guadalcanal, wrote that Mrs. Roosevelt kissed her radical political protégé, the inveterate professional youth of rising 30 summers, Joe Lash, for whom

By PAUL MALLON

Washington—How the average man will be able to pay a 30 per cent withholding tax, put the customary 10 per cent into government bonds, and live on 60 per cent of his earnings or less, is the main stumbling block to the tax problem which the treasury is pushing off upon congress.

In some instances, as with government workers, an additional five percent goes to retirement, meaning that a single worker earning $50 a week would have to pay out $1890 a week in taxes and live on $3110 (allowing for the $12 a week basic withholding tax exemption.

Wages have gone up, it is true. The official estimate of average weekly earnings (War Labor Board) is up 10.7 per cent from September 1942 to May 1943. But the most of living is officially calculated to have increased 6.2 per cent in the same period.

National statistics never accurately portray anything more than a cold generalization. Most people think the cost of living, for instance, is up much more than the official estimate, which is weighted perhaps with many things they do not buy and cannot get these days.

Also, the wages of many war worker groups are up much more than 10.7 per cent while those of professional, clerical and white collar classes are probably not increased that much.

But officialdom says there is approximately $50,000,000,000 of surplus money in circulation in the United States, and it wants to reach that reservoir of funds. The money, of course, is being spent, in banks, business or pocketbooks. There is no taxation method by which it can be extracted directly, because of the unevenness of its distribution.

In the face of this situation, it is obvious that the treasury tax program will be viewed in congress as a rather theoretical ambition. No one there thinks anything like $10,000,000,000 more in money can be raised. It is likely that the bill if finally enacted, will be less than half of the requested amount.

There is one way in which a large amount of new money could be brought in, from the surplus cash reservoir, but it has not much backing. This method, of course, is the sales tax.

Roosevelt has always shared the common liberal viewpoint strenuous efforts were made to obtain a free commission in the Navy, now a sergeant in the Army.

Robinson also said he asked Private Martin Bazar of Providence, R. I., how he felt about being visited by the president's wife, and that Bazar replied, "I'd rather be visited by my own."

Jones Funeral Home

that such a tax lays more heavily on the poor than the rich. The fact is it now would catch those who have the money and are spending it.

In normal times, the liberal argument has a better foundation, but, in these days when the surplus money is largely in the hands of war workers, the liberal position seems to me to be antiquated. However, in view of Roosevelt's opposition, it cannot be enacted.

Clearly, the present income, corporation and excise taxes are near the workable endurance limit. You read and hear some liberal and union claims continually that corporations are making big war profits, but here again the national average is somewhat misleading. The big war producers like United States Steel, General Motors and others are making less.

Contract renegotiation is cutting still further into war plants income. The national over-all figure is bulged by such sensational increases as those of the railroads, for instance, which are making more money than ever in history.

Consequently, it would not be surprising if congress failed in the end to enact any tax bill at all.

A reader has written me protesting my column urging that government bonds are the best investment obtainable by the average man in these times. He complains that citizens will have to pay the interest in taxes on the bonds they buy, and, therefore, are merely paying themselves.

Right, he is. But all the more reason for buying the bonds. This complaining reader will pay his taxes anyway, but will never get any interest return from the government. The program will thus cost him money for not having participated in it.

Miss Ida Arnold, 71, passed away at her home, 511 Dixon avenue, at 5:45 o'clock Sunday morning. Strictly private funeral services will be held at the Preston funeral home at 2:00 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, with burial in Oakwood cemetery, where her father was sexton many years ago. She was born in South Dixon township, June 10, 1864 and had lived in this vicinity all her life, 70 years in a house in which she died.

REV. A. J. TOMLINSON

Cleveland, Tenn., Oct. 4.—(AP)—The Rev. A. J. Tomlinson, 78 years old, overseer of the Tomlinson branch of the Church of God, died Saturday at his home here. He had been ill since Sept. 6.

Bishop Tomlinson had lived to see the work of years split by a faction fight; himself after a three year court battle, deposed as general overseer of the church and the property of the large organization removed from his control.

After the Supreme court of Tennessee ruled he no longer controlled his organization, he started over again and in 20 years built an organization with a financial status of many millions of dollars and followers all over the world.

Born near Elwood, Ind., Bishop Tomlinson as a young man came south and about 38 years ago began perfecting a formal organization, which grew rapidly. After a misunderstanding arose in 1923 he was deposed as general overseer by the Church of God's board of 12 elders and 70 associate elders.

By SID FEDER

New York, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Everything was about ready today for the World Series—except how to get tickets, where to sleep and what was cooking with Mort Cooper's ailing arm.

The village was really hopping and popping for this return bout between the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals starting tomorrow at the Stadium. And with the Yanks installed as 7 to 10 favorites to win back the world championship, the big question was whether Mort and his mysterious sore arm or lefty Max Lanier and his fork-side flipper would tangle with Spud Chandler on opening day, provided Spud got a chance. Joe McCarthy's expected call.

It was New Year's Eve on every street and the hotels, night clubs and restaurants were hitting nothing but jackpots as indications were the first three games, all in New York, may be the fanciest financial fuses in series history.

Appearance of Gus Fan and the missus and some 70,000 of their relatives could wipe out the 69,902 single-game attendance record which these same two outfits drew for their Sunday game a year ago.

Betting Price Boosted

Although the Yanks were supposed to have a weaker team than last year, with Joe DiMaggio and Phil Rizzuto and Red Ruffing off to war, the gambling guys boosted the betting price a notch in their favor over the week-end. Chances are they have been influenced by the Bombers' power-hitting and the way the Yankee varsity flingers have been sizzling the last few weeks.

Hank Borowy was riding a six-game winning streak as the season ended; Chandler posted the lowest-earned-run average in 20 years, and Marius Russo, Ernie Bonham and Charley Wensloff all wound up with some of their better flipping.

Cooper's arm problem and the fact that Mort's been belted out four times by American leaguers—twice in last year's series and twice in All-Star games—has led to a definite indication that Manager Billy Southworth may put the finger on Lanier for the first game. Following the top two games probably will be a couple more lefties, Alpha Brazil and Harry Brecheen, partly to cope with the Yanks' left-handed hitting strength, but mostly because they're better than anyone else in the Card bullpen.

Run-Making Machine

On the artillery side, the Cards have Stan Musial, National League batting boss with a .357 season average, as well as all the running tricks they worked so handsily in last year's set. Against this, the Yanks go into the series with 100 homers for the season for the 19th year in a row, and their old-time handy habit of breaking loose and knocking the roof in on a pitcher any time.

Left-handed hurling has been troublesome to them this year, but not enough to make them whip out the crying towel. And while the St. Louis larrupers outfit them by 25 points as a club this season, the Uptown thumpers still are the game's best run-making machine.

Columbus Draws First Blood in Little Series

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Holding a one-game lead in the 1943 Little World Series, the Columbus Red Birds will fire to-night with southpaw Preacher Roe as they attempt to make it six straight over the Syracuse Chiefs.

The Ohioans won 2-0 yesterday afternoon. Last year the Association club dropped the opening contest at Syracuse, then won four of five for the title.

BETTER BABIES

Two centuries ago, only one child in every four born in London lived to the age of 5. Nearly nine out every ten reach that age now.

Washington

By James Thrasher
Telegraph Special Service

It's pretty hard these days to get to see Rep. James William Fulbright of Arkansas. It's even harder to get many uninterrupted words with the young man secretary and the two stenographers who form his office staff. For these young people—all of whom attended the University of Arkansas when their boss was its president—have a full-time job keeping abreast of the flood of congratulatory telegrams, letters and phone calls that are pouring in on the author of House Concurrent Resolution 25.

H. Con. Res 25 is, of course, the 55-word sentence whereby the House of Representatives put itself on record, by a 360-to-29 vote, as favoring this country's participation in an international effort toward lasting peace. It is doubtful that even the laconic Calvin Coolidge ever said so little and made such a hit with the public. Those 55 words have made their author, for the moment at least, the most popular and sought-after member of congress.

Within a week after Fulbright's resolution was passed, he has broadcast on the "March of Time" and the New York Times "Win the Peace Forum," and had been a guest on "Information, Please." His full schedule had forced him to decline invitations for other radio appearances on the University of Chicago "Round Table" and "Congress Speaks," and for dozens of speaking engagements.

That isn't bad for a 38-year-old freshman legislator from the Ozarks. All he needs now to become a typical American celebrity is for Hollywood to start bidding for the movie rights to his 55-word declaration.

NO PUBLICITY HOUND

But Fulbright is no seeker after publicity. He is naturally pleased at the outcome of the House vote. But his pleasure is in the fact that a branch of Congress has taken the step outlined in this measure, rather than in his authorship of it.

James William Fulbright (his friends call him Bill, not Jim) is a handsome man, black-haired, blue-eyed, tanned and muscular. He was a varsity halfback and a letterman in tennis at the University of Arkansas, besides being president of the student body. He was smart enough to win a Rhodes scholarship to Oxford after his graduation in 1925, and husky enough to win a place over there on an international lacrosse team that toured the United States.

Fulbright is a serious student of international affairs, and a man who takes his congressional duties to heart. At the same time, he is genial and likeable. He has a way of getting on with people. And, although his campaign last fall was his first taste of politics, he seems to possess an unusual amount of political savvy.

He needed all these qualities to get himself and his resolution where they are today. For the whole history of the Fulbright resolution is one of extreme audacity, if judged by conventional standards.

In the first place, Fulbright is the lowest ranking member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. He came to Congress with a burning desire for membership in that august body and, with the help of his colleagues in the Arkansas delegation, he made it. But it just wasn't congressional cricket for the lowest ranking member to introduce, as his first piece of legislation, what from a historical standpoint is certainly the most important measure of the session.

Fulbright knew what to do, however, once he got his toe in the door. He was careful throughout, never forcing his way, never sticking his neck out, making no bad mistakes. His committee colleagues added 17 words to the original 38 of his resolution, apparently, it would seem, because it is a traditional legislative habit to add, subtract and pick to pieces. They did not change the fundamental meaning.

A more impetuous first-former might have fought this tinkering. But not Fulbright. He knew what he wanted and, by compromise, he got it. The 14 Democrats and 11 Republicans of the Foreign Affairs Committee voted out the resolution unanimously.

The Fulbright resolution got the expected opposition from the expected sources in debate on the floor. Here again its author conducted himself with tact and intelligence. He made probably the clearest, most temperate and convincing of all the speeches in the measure's favor.

He won the admiration of most of his colleagues, and his 55 words won a thumping conclusive vote. They even lined up such poles-apart representatives as Hamilton Fish and Vito Marcantonio on the same side of the fence.

And that, for a freshman congressman or anyone else, is quite an achievement.

Voice of the Press

AWAKENING TO OUR DESTINY
(Chicago Tribune)

Three United States senators, who were members of a party of five inspecting American battle fronts all over the world, have returned to this country with a report that shows encouraging evidence of the awakening of responsibility in American leadership.

These men have grave fear that the substance and the sovereignty of the United States are being threatened by what is happening overseas. The burden of their report is that we may be winning battles but we are losing the future of this nation. The hyper-altruism with which the New Dealers are giving away American rights and American wealth, both in warfare and in lend-lease, is mortgaging our birthright.

The senators point out that we will come out of the war with nothing to show for the billions of dollars we have spent in building air bases throughout the world. They say we are not even allowed, in fact, to land our commercial planes on bases we built in North Africa.

The senators say that while the British are hoarding and storing up their oil supplies in the Persian Gulf we are draining our own stocks in this country to provide oil for the European war. At the present rate of consumption they estimate our oil will be gone in 10 to 12 years.

"We would have to go out with a tin dipper and beg for petroleum if the United States had to fight another war 10 years from now, at the rate we are exhausting our reserves," Sen. Ralph O. Brewster (R., Me.) said.

The senators also criticized the reporting of the war and accounts of the fighting as insufficiently frank. Soldiers who hear broadcasts from home about the battles they have been in are discouraged at the way the enemy's efforts are minimized. Americans at home should be told more about war's seamy side," they say.

Newspapers which fail to report the war in true perspective, with no minimizing of our difficulties and casualties in battle, are untrue to the traditions of their profession. Fortunately, there are few such offenders in the ranks of the American press. Where the greatest abuse of the truth lies is in radio news reports for consumption abroad. These are under government control. The censorship which prevents newspaper men with the armies from telling embarrassing truths, is, of course, a contributing factor. It doesn't hurt the enemy; it harms our own cause.

The concern of Senators Brewster, James M. Mead (D., N. Y.), and Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.), who came home with these reports, is encouraging for Americans. We must look to congress to assure the protection of the Republic and its assets on the battle lines as well as at home. The Roosevelt administration has proved that responsibility for America's welfare does not lie in the executive branch.

These senators, who have carried out an inspector general's mission on the fighting fronts, are in a splendid position to impress their anxiety for our nation on their congressional colleagues and to demand that action be taken forthwith. We need in this war a congressional committee on the conduct of the war. Such a committee existed during our Civil war. Some mistakes were made but, by and large, it made a tremendous contribution to victory.

HIGH SHOOTING

(Boston Herald)
It is a familiar conception in military affairs that every new and effective weapon of attack is finally countered with an approximately equal defense. This war has seen the development of bombing planes that can virtually obliterate a large city. The steady improvement in range, bomb load and precision stirs the imagination.

Of course, defenses will keep pace, and though future conflicts will carry aviation still farther along, there is no reason to believe it will be completely decisive. A straw in the aeronautical wind is the report from London that a German reconnaissance plane, flying at a height of 36,000 feet, was downed by three anti-aircraft batteries. To a layman the chance of hitting a moving speck in the air seven miles up seems remote. By the time the shell had reached that altitude, it would seem likely that the target would be over another county. But the fact remains that, as planes go high to avoid ground fire, the guns themselves extend their effective range.

An anti-aircraft gun theoretically commands a conical shaped portion of the atmosphere directly above it. This cone has as its extreme height the maximum vertical range and as its radius the maximum horizontal range. With an extremely rapid rate of fire, plus amazingly developed sights and trained artillerymen, this cone shaped area can be surprisingly well covered.

There are indications that Germany is improving its anti-aircraft defenses. The loss of 36 heavy bombers on the first American-British-African shuttle raid may be a case in point. The success of the German evacuation of Sicily is ascribable in part to the concentration of anti-aircraft guns. Back in the early days of the war, a Japanese bomber was shot down over Corregidor at a height of 5 1/2 miles by a 4.7-inch cannon. At the time this was regarded as sensational, but such a feat is becoming commonplace.

Trader Offers to Swap Knife for Jap Teeth

Rapid City, S. D. (AP)—John Burr, jack-of-all-trades veteran of World War I, will com. out of World War II with what he believes will be a fine souvenir, even though he sits it out thousands of miles from the fighting.

He fashions and gives to men in the army and navy long bladed Commando knives. There is only one string attached to the gifts he makes from saw blades, files and other scrap metal.

He asks for the eye-teeth of a Japanese soldier and plans to string them on a necklace.

2 POLISH REGIMENTS FLEE TO FOREST TO HARASS NAZIS
Stockholm, Sweden—(AP)—Two regiments of Poles conscripted from nazi military service have fled into the forests 135 miles northeast of Warsaw with artillery, mortars, and other equipment and brigaded to harass the Germans, the secret Polish radio station "Swit" said today. Young Poles were reported streaming into the forests to join them.

U. S. Battleship 'X' Cruiser Sinker Is Identified by Navy

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4—(AP)—The famous "Battleship X", which shot down 32 planes in one engagement and then sank three Japanese cruisers has been identified by the navy at the U. S. S. South Dakota.

Under command of Capt. Thomas L. Gatch, now Rear Adm. Gatch, judge advocate general of the navy, the South Dakota made her big score the night of Nov. 14 off Saivo Island in the Solomons.

She was prowling in search of enemy shipping when the three cruisers came into sight. The first salvo from the South Dakota set ablaze one of the cruisers. Before the other enemy warships could get within range, the South Dakota had sunk them all. Earlier she had slugged her way through a heavy air attack, shooting down 32 planes.

Ship Of New Class

The Navy said the battleship's identity had been kept a secret for nearly a year because she was the first ship of a new class bearing ing new armament and with greatly increased fire power. To have identified her, the Navy said, would have given the enemy valuable information.

The South Dakota's sister ships in the hard slugging class are the U.S.S. Massachusetts, U.S.S. Indiana and U.S.S. Alabama.

Gatch told of the battle in a formal report which said, "I was more afraid of ramming the carrier we were protecting than of the attacking planes".

He said only a single torpedo plane of a group of 40 Japanese bombers did not fall or turn back from the South Dakota's fire.

Torpedo Misses Ship

"It came at the stern of the ship," he reported. "It appeared that millions of tracer shells went right past that plane without hitting it, but some did strike it just before the pilot released his torpedo".

The torpedo missed and the plane struck the water and sank. Earlier 20 enemy dive bombers had been shot down in the first of three attacks on the battleship.

The third attack brought 24 dive bombers and torpedo planes. One bomb landed on top of a turret. "That was the only hit we took and it was the one that got me", said Gatch. A fragment of the bomb struck him in the neck.

Jap Trap Mistires

Gatch said the Japanese thought they had set a trap for American war vessels between the islands of Guadalcanal and Savo. "We wanted to get caught", Gatch added. "They weren't expecting us they had set this trap for foxes and we didn't think it would hold bears".

The battleships lookouts spotted the enemy war craft. "They never knew what sank them," Gatch said.

Subsequently the American force turned south in a passage west of Savo Island. Japanese cruisers and destroyers dashed out to attack with torpedoes. But again the Japanese "trap" backfired. And when the battle ended, the United States vessels had sunk one Japanese battleship or heavy cruiser, three cruisers, and one destroyer, and damaged other vessels.

GETS MARRIED 8 O'CLOCK; ON WAY TO ARMY BEFORE 9

Point Pleasant, W. Va.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Miller say they had one of the shortest honeymoons on record. The wedding ceremony was performed in the office of County Clerk John G. Aten at 8 a. m. and within an hour the bridegroom said good-bye to his wife and left Point Pleasant with a group of army inductees.

IT'S FIRE PREVENTION Week!
Did you know that Illinois had over 15,000 fires last year or over 1,200 each month, and that the loss exclusive of Chicago was 14 million dollars? Thirteen large fires accounted for four and one-half million dollars of this loss. There were 240 persons who lost their lives and 590 who suffered serious injuries as a result of fire.

WHEN you know that over 5,000 of these fires were in dwellings where the loss was more than three million dollars and when you remember that it is almost impossible, because of the war, to secure the material to rebuild if fire should destroy your home you should be doubly anxious this week to follow all suggestions of your fire department for protecting your property.

THE state fire marshal, John H. Craig, has prepared a list of 17 things which he thinks you should watch in your home. Here is the list—take a pencil and check any on which you're not 100% right.

MATCHES—Keep in closed metal box, out of children's reach. Be sure flame is out before you discard match. Have metal receptacle for used matches.

SMOKING—Extinguish smokes before discarding.

KEROSENE—Do not use to start or revive a fire. Scores die yearly from flash-backs or explosions.

GASOLINE, BENZINE, ETC.—Keep it out of house and away from open light or flame. Never pour down drain. Do not dry cleaning with gasoline, naphtha or other highly inflammable liquids.

OIL MOPS AND DRAGS—Keep in closed metal cans. They ignite from spontaneous combustion.

TRASH AND RUBBISH—Do not allow it to accumulate, especially in attic, cellar and closets. Clean it out and dispose of it.

BONFIRES—Do not burn near buildings, fences, dry grass, etc., or on windy days. WATCH FIRES UNTIL OUT.

OPEN LIGHTS—Do not have near lace curtains or other combustible material.

ELECTRICITY—Have an expert do the job and do not tamper with it. Do not use lamp cord for extensions nor hang it over nails. When fuse blows out replace it with one of same rating. Do not use pennies behind fuses or otherwise tamper with them.

ELECTRIC IRONS—Be sure current is turned off when you leave them.

GAS TUBING—Replace with rigid pipe.

GAS PLATES—Protect underneath with asbestos covered with metal.

FLUES AND HEATING PLANTS—Have them cleaned, examined and repaired if necessary once a year. Do not overheat. Protect exposed woodwork with metal or asbestos. Do not pass stove pipes through ceilings, roofs or wooden partitions.

ASHES—Use only metal cans.

Relief At Last For Your Cough
Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

Fliers at Bomber Base Find Way to Pacify Gremlins

Bomber Base in England—(AP)—Boys at this Royal Air Force think they have found a way to pacify those gremlins.

Little is heard these days about the little demons who put the hex on flyers and here's probably the reason why:

When the bombers take off, each crew is given a more than ample supply of chocolate and other sweets for the long flights deep into the heart of Germany which often take six or seven hours.

Hardly ever do they eat all these goodies so, when they are safely back, the rations are carefully left in the bomber for the gremlins. The little men who are sometimes pictured carrying pitchforks are naturally not going to pass up such a feast in favor of shennanigans that would cause a crackup.

Denies He's Superstitious
But Pilot Officer Ken Painter of Brighton, pilot of X for X-Ray—the veteran bomber at this base with 45 raids—says that "really, we are not superstitious."

Painter would not think of wearing heavy fleece lined flying boots, even though sometimes his feet are frozen almost numb. But, he says, it isn't a superstition—just that should he be forced to bail out he would find it difficult to walk in the big boots.

"X for X-ray" is a four engine Lancaster with an inscription in Portuguese on the side reading "God takes care of drunks and babies." The inscription was placed there by a Portuguese pilot who preceded Painter at the controls.

She has a carefree, happy go lucky crew now, too. A rag doll—Alice—goes along on every flight. Not superstition, mind you, just a mascot. Alice's skirt is "coming down," Painter says, "but we're going to get one of the WAAFS to sew it." Where Alice came from nobody knows.

When the crew climbs into "X for X-ray" they follow a little ritual. It's custom that they get in on the left side near the flare-shoot and once, when that entrance was blocked by leaflets and other stuff before the rear gunner arrived, operations were held up 15 minutes until the way was cleared. He could have climbed in on the right side—but Painter explains that his crew just happens to be sticklers for regularity.

Superstitions—"Never in your life old boy," says the young pilot.

And Painter's navigator would never think of going on a raid without wearing his best peaked dress hat. "Funny fellow," laughs Painter. "But he's a real dude. Superstitious—forget that stuff."

Here's Story of How Physician Served Ships Alley

By DON WHITEHEAD

Aboard a U. S. Warship in the Gulf of Salerno, Sept. 18—(Delayed)—(AP)—The ship's air raid alarm blurted its nerve-tingling signal.

"Here it is," intoned a voice over the loudspeaker. "General quarters! All hands man battle stations!"

Sailors raced along the decks and up from below decks. Officers gulped another bite of food or swallowed the last of their coffee, grabbed helmets, and hurried to their posts.

Hatches were slammed shut. The ventilation system was cut off. The inside of the ship was hot and stifling.

On deck gunners strained their eyes into the hot sun. Lookouts swept the skies with glasses. A gray haze of smoke hung over the ship and filled the invasion gulf. Red danger flags flapped from the masts. The rumble of navy and army guns rolled across the water and on the beach ships disgorged men, weapons, and supplies into the allied beachhead.

Out of the Sun
Now bomber's alley was tense and waiting. And suddenly they came diving out of the sun—four German planes screaming down in echelon. A single gun stuttered, spurring tracers which ripped the blue sky with streaks of white. As though waiting for that signal dozens of guns roared, slamming steel at the enemy.

The planes dropped their bombs and raced for safety. One suddenly burst into flame and dove into the sea. Smoke boiled up. The water bubbled and became quiet. Another plane wobbled like a man slugged on the chin, straightened out, and then dove gracefully to destruction.

Three bombs fell harmlessly, shoving up plumes of water. But a fourth found its target. Black smoke boiled from a nearby ship and flames spewed out in orange tongues. Small boats raced to the stricken vessel.

A short time later the boat came alongside our ship with the injured and wounded—men with clothes burned from their bodies, men dazed from shock and with eyes glazed with pain and horror at what had happened to them. They did not cry or whimper. They made no sound at all.

Leave Dead Behind
On the ship these men had left were piled bodies of dead. A bomb had exploded in their living quarters. The blast blew the men into a grotesque heap at one end of their bunkroom. Most of them never knew what hit them.

Some of the casualties came aboard in stretchers. Others managed to clamber across the rail. One lanky seaman's clothes flapped in ribbons. Skin hung in strips from his arms, back and legs. He came aboard unaided. A blond youngster rubbed his bloody face. Red ooze dripped between his fingers. A chunky lad burned coal black was covered with feathers from a burst pillow.

One seaman looked up. His face was torn with shrapnel. He grinned at a friend. "I was lucky," he croaked.

Our ship never was intended to be used as a hospital ship. The little sick bay had bunks for only four patients.

Michigan Doctor in Charge
But this made no difference to the small town Michigan physician who was the ship's medical officer. The only thing important was that these men had to have immediate medical care and there was no hospital ship in the immediate area. So our ship became a mercy ship.

A large room was hastily converted into a hospital ward. Some were taken to the radio machine shop, others into the officers' bunk room.

The doctor in charge was Lt. C. G. Walcott of Fenton, Mich. He received his M. D. from the University of Michigan in 1934 and began practicing in Fenton. Before he entered the navy in July, 1942 he was on the staff of the St. Joseph's and Woman's hospitals in Flint, Mich.

Within 30 minutes he had the patients settled and was giving them first aid with the help of his "staff" of three pharmacist mates.

Fortunately the sick bay was well stocked with medical supplies, and Walcott had a fairly complete set of surgical instruments.

Two men with mangled hands had to have amputations so he converted the radio transmitter room into an operating room. The metal table became the operating table.

"Please, Doc," one of the men said, "take the ring off that finger. I want to save it."

"Why?" Walcott asked.

"I can't lose that. It's my lucky ring."

All night Walcott cared for his patients, giving them blood transfusion, fighting shock, easing pain.

The explosion had splintered a wooden door and driven splinters into the face and eyelids of one man.

"They stuck out of him like porcupine quills," Walcott said. The ship's chief engineer jumped into the sea to escape the blast.

"And I was doing all right," he said, "until they dropped a whale-boat on my head."

As quickly as possible Walcott evacuated the casualties to hospital ships with modern surgical equipment, adequate facilities, and cool, quiet wards.

"Thank God, we haven't had a single death," he said.
